Artists who champion good causes

Based in Trinidad and Tobago, Patricia has been drawing ever since she learned how to hold a pencil. Her work is inspired by folktales and the bright tropical colors of the Caribbean landscape that surrounds her. Growing up around a multitude of colors and cultures has fuelled her love for creating unique characters that reflect her upbringing. Her journey as a self-taught artist has encouraged her to experiment with several styles that have merged into an distinct artistic voice. So, although she works digitally, Patricia loves taking a “mixed media” approach to her illustrations by incorporating textures found in traditional art. She has a passion for storytelling and enjoys illustrating narratives that convey a sense of wonder and hope.
