Individual Diverse Global Distinct
Artists who champion good causes

Tom Jennings is an English illustrator, based in South London. He studied illustration in Bristol before moving to London to embark on a career as a designer, Art Director, and Creative Director for clients such as Google, Apple, Playstation, Disney, Diesel, and the BBC. Tom is inspired by many artists including Saul Steinberg, Ralph Steadman, Quentin Blake, Posy Simmonds, Milton Glaser, Gipi, and Raymond Briggs. His distinctive line-based style has its roots in pen and ink drawing, with watercolour washes. Tom's work is mostly digital, but he often employs a hybrid approach with traditional media when appropriate. His creative experience and playful approach allow him to turn his hand to any brief. Some of his previous illustration clients include Penguin Random House, Walker Books, Wired, The Guardian, One Aldwych, The Goring, Intercontinental Hotels, Waitrose, Reiss, and Volkswagen. His appealing characters and gentle wit are instantly recognisable, regardless of medium.

When not busy with illustration projects Tom can usually be found tinkering with electric guitars and modular synthesisers, watching live bands in murky London music venues, or hanging out with his wife and daughter.
