

Victoria Borges was born in Germany, and has been lucky enough to call many beautiful places her home, namely Hawaii, Austria, and most recently Richmond, VA. She has a degree in Communication Arts from Virginia Commonwealth University, and now works as a designer and freelance illustrator, making work for both home decor and editorial publications.

She's creatively restless (in a good way!) which has led her to explore a myriad of media, including oil painting, watercolor, screen printing, stop motion animation, gif-making, and digital illustration. Victoria draws influence from everywhere: music, architecture, old picture books, the natural world, strange dreams. Her style is versatile, whimsical and textured to create a visually interesting solution to any narrative.
