

Yasmin Ayumi is an illustrator from Brazil who discovered her passion for art at a young age. She graduated with a degree in graphic design and started her career as a designer for publishing houses. After illustrating projects for children's books, websites, apps, magazines, and textbooks, she decided to pursue her dream of becoming a full-time illustrator.

Her artwork is characterized by a loveable and colorful atmosphere that reflects her passion: creating things that make people smile. Her admiration for fauvist art and contemporary artists inspire her playful use of color and charismatic characters. Her favorite method of illustration is digital. Through it, she manages to work in a practical and efficient way, ensuring agility and reliability in the process. When she's not drawing, you can find her unwinding by going for a run or taking her dog for a walk. Exploring the outside fills her creative gauge and turns it into inspiration for new creations.
